RESEARCH INTERESTS

My research interests lie in Human–Computer Interaction, with a particular focus on creativity support and human–AI collaboration. I design AI-assisted systems that enable people to retrieve, reinterpret, and repurpose personal media for creative expression, particularly in open-ended practices such as collage-based storytelling. I envision future human–AI co-creation as playful, iterative, and transformative over time: fostering exploratory and serendipitous engagement, supporting the progressive development of ideas, and shaping enduring creative behaviors and practices. I am particularly interested in how such long-term transformations can facilitate reflection and meaning-making in contexts such as therapeutic art-making.
